

STRIKE AND STRIKES IN GERMAN CITIES NOT YET SUBSIDING

Casualties In Hamburg Total 42 Killed And 116 Wounded

BUILDING BOMBED

Troops Occupy Telephone Offices Emptied By Operators Strike

HINDENBURG QUILTS

Important Railway Lines Closed By Walk-Outs Of Workers

(Reuter's Service)
Copenhagen, June 27.—A message from Hamburg today states that the government troops are occupying the city undisturbed. In all 42 persons were killed and 116 wounded in the recent street fighting.

A message from Berlin states that 5 persons were killed and 24 wounded in the rioting at Frankfurt-on-Oder. Martial law has been proclaimed and order has been restored.

A message from Berlin states that the disturbance in Northern Berlin have revived. Four persons were killed and a number wounded by a bomb which exploded outside the building where negotiations between the railway men and the Government were proceeding.

The Government has refused to accede to the men's demand. Town Hall Is Seized

Berlin, June 26.—The Hamburg insurgents after a fight in which many persons were killed or wounded, seized the Town Hall, marched the volunteer troops to prison amid the jeers of the populace and liberated the other prisoners. A Committee of Twelve is administering the city.

General von Lettow-Vorbeck is advancing to restore order.

It is understood that these disturbances are part of a big revolt which is in preparation throughout the country but this outbreak was premature.

There have been food riots at Frankfurt-on-Oder and Landsberg in which shops, warehouses, restaurants and markets were plundered. The prison at Frankfurt was stormed and the prisoners liberated, the intervention of Government troops proving to be avail.

Machine Guns In Streets

Berlin, June 26.—There were further disturbances yesterday evening in the Moabit quarter.

There was machine-gunning yesterday evening in the Alexanderplatz.

3,000 telephone operators have struck and the telephone offices are occupied by troops.

A message from Kolberg states that Marshal von Hindenburg's letter to President Ebert tendering his resignation says "at the conclusion of peace, I lay down the chief command."

Rail Traffic Crippled

Berlin, June 26.—The traffic on several important railway lines has ceased owing to a strike of railway men, the extent of which is not known.

The Voelche Zeitung declares that General Grothe (?), successor to General von Ludendorff, is resigning owing to the acceptance of the Treaty of Peace.

The correspondent of the Kreuz Zeitung in Vienna states that Herr Wedel, the German Ambassador, has resigned for similar reasons.

Celebrate Fourth Today With Receptions And Sport And Many Informal Affairs

Consulate, American Club And Columbia Club Have Functions; Baseball Game This Afternoon --That Is, If It Doesn't Rain

With various of the other Allied nations joining in, including the Chinese community, Shanghai Americans celebrate Independence Day today with a program of receptions, sports, dinners, teas and dances.

American government offices and homes will be closed for the day and it is hoped that the flag display will eclipse the record breaking showing made last year. From all indications this will be so for the Chinese Commercial Federation has issued a call to all Chinese merchants to fly the Stars and Stripes and otherwise cooperate with their American friends in the observation of their national holiday.

Reception At Consulate

The day's program begins with Consul-General Sammons' reception to his Consular colleagues and other officials at the Consulate from 10:30 to 11:30 o'clock this morning. Then comes the American Club's annual "at home" and reception and luncheon for members and their friends between the hours of 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. The ball game, contingent upon the weather, follows and from 5 to 8 p.m. there will be a tennis-tea-dance at the Columbia Country Club for members of this and the American Club and their friends. Over 200 reservations for this affair had been received yesterday and it is expected that there will be a big attendance.

In the evening there will be special dinners and dances at various of the hotels and cafes and it is expected that the usual large number of private dinner-dance parties will be in swing during the evening. Consul-General Sammons is giving an Independence Day and Peace Celebration dinner to his Consular colleagues, Admiral Rodgers and staff and American naval officers and their wives.

Ball Game Arranged

An eleventh-hour decision by the Committee of the Shanghai Amateur Baseball Club, made when it was learned that the Villalobos, Quiros and Elcano had arrived in port, is responsible for one change in the holiday program. A picked team from the gunboats instead of the U. S. S. New Orleans Club will oppose Shanghai at the Race Course this afternoon. The game will start at three o'clock.

The annual holiday clash for the American Club cup will be devoid of any ceremonies. There will be no band and no decorations. The pitcher will throw the first ball. After the game, Mr. Thomas Sammons, United States Consul-General, is to present the big silver trophy to the winners.

Although the grounds are not in the best of shape, the game will be played if no rain falls tonight or tomorrow. Gill and Bradley will be the battery for Shanghai with Hunt, a left-hander, and Becker as the major battery. Chapman and Logan are to umpire.

HOLLAND TOLD TO WATCH EX-KAISER AND HIS SON

Important Consequences Said To Be Possible In Case That They Escape

(Reuter's Service)
Paris, June 27.—The newspaper Excelsior states that the Council of Four has decided to direct the attention of the Netherlands Government to the possible important consequences of the escape of the Crown Prince, if true, and to request the Government to keep a closer watch over the ex-Kaiser.

Several Men Injured During Arsenal Fire

Soldiers Struck By Flying Missiles In Magazine Explosions

Several soldiers were hurt by falling missiles and one horse was burnt to death as a result of the explosion Wednesday night of the munition magazine of the second battalion of the fourth brigade of the fourth division, according to announcements made by the local military authorities yesterday. Over 20 cases of shells and powders were destroyed. The cause of the explosion is given as spontaneous combustion. The munition has been kept in the magazine for more than 20 years, it is said.

A representative of General Li Shun, Tsuchun of this province, arrived in Shanghai yesterday and immediately paid a flying call on General Lu Yung-hsiang, the Shanghai Defense Commissioner. He will remain in Shanghai for some time and make a thorough investigation of the cause of the fire. In spite of the telegraphic report of General Lu to General Li Wednesday, Nanking is very anxious about the local situation in view of the restlessness of the people over the Shantung agitation.

HUNDREDS ARE KILLED IN BUDAPEST FIGHTING

Warfare In Streets Breaks Out Between Soviet Troops And White Guards

(Reuter's Service)
Copenhagen, June 26.—A message from Vienna states that hundreds of people, mostly passersby, were killed or injured in the fighting in Budapest yesterday.

Numerous collisions occurred in the streets between the Soviet troops and the White Guards and fighting was still proceeding yesterday evening.

A message from Budapest states that the Commander-in-Chief, Bochn, has been appointed Commissary for Foreign Affairs and Bela Kun has been appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Red Army.

Soviet Building Shelled

Copenhagen, June 25.—A message from Budapest states that a counter-revolutionary outbreak has occurred in which some officers seized a Danube monitor and others occupied the artillery barracks.

The monitor three times shelled the Soviet building. The outbreak was suppressed and the ringleaders arrested.

Election Results Announced

Copenhagen, June 25.—A message from Budapest states that the election of the People's Commissaries by the Soviet executive is as follows:

President of the Governing Council, Alexander Garbai.

Commissary for Foreign Affairs, Bela Kun.

Commissary of the Army, Bela Kun.

Commissary of the Interior, Landier.

Pause In Warfare

Paris, June 26.—As the result of an interchange of communications, hostilities on the Hungarian-Czech-Slovak front ceased on the 24th, although the Magyars are not evacuating the territory they are occupying.

BRITISH LABOR MOVES TO SOFTEN TERMS AND ADMIT FOE TO LEAGUE

Southport Conference Takes Stand Treaty Conflicts With Fourteen Points

OPPOSED TO CONSCRIPTION

Looks With Favor On Seizure By Government Of Wealth And Property, However

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 26.—The Labor Conference today unanimously passed a resolution proposed by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald urging the speedy admission of Germany to the League of Nations and the immediate revision by the League of Nations of the clauses of the Treaty of Peace which are inconsistent with the conditions on which the armistice was concluded.

The Labor Conference also passed a resolution in favor of conscription of wealth.

Wants Russian Operations To End

London, June 27.—The Labor Conference at Southport, by 1,893,000 votes against 935,000 passed a resolution urging the Trade Union Congress to take steps to prepare for industrial action in order to compel the Government to cease operations in Russia.

Against Conscription

The Labor Conference has passed a resolution recommending the Trade Union Congress and the Triple Alliance to take immediate industrial action to abolish conscription in the United Kingdom.

Session Held Important

London, June 26.—The labor Party Conference opened at Southport today is regarded as the most important in the history of the movement.

Mr. McGurk, the chairman, in his inaugural address, condemned the political strike and urged the British extremists to give parliamentary methods a fair chance.

Mr. Williams and Mr. Smilie, representing the Triple Alliance, took exception to the paragraphs in the executive's report condemning the movement in favor of direct industrial action in order to overthrow the Government's policy and Mr. Smilie moved the paragraphs should be referred back to the executive but, on an appeal from Mr. Arthur Henderson, Mr. Smilie withdrew his motion, which will come up more formally later.

French Delegates Admitted

London, June 26.—In the House of Commons today, during question time, Mr. Edward Shortt said that the six French delegates to the Southport Conference were detained pending enquiries. They were subsequently allowed to proceed but two preferred to return to France. Their detention was due to allegations which it was absolutely impossible to ignore. Mr. J. F. Green, a labor member, observed that Longuet was notoriously pro-German during the war.

Action By Premier

Paris, June 26.—Reuter's Agency authoritatively learns that when Mr. Lloyd George's attention was directed to the matter he immediately gave instructions that the French delegates should no longer be detained, subject to their giving certain assurances, to which the delegates immediately agreed.

Battle Today For World's Title

Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard

This afternoon at Toledo, Ohio, Jack Dempsey will attempt to wrest the heavyweight title from Jess Willard, the present champion of the world. It will be Willard's first appearance in the ring since the 30-minute, half-way serious battle with Frank Moran and his second since he knocked out Jack Johnson at Havana. The champion will enter the ring between 40 and 45 pounds heavier than Dempsey, will have five or six inches in height and the advantage of several inches in reach.

Dempsey's backers are figuring that the challenger's speed will win him the title, for Willard is known to be a slow starter and the fight is scheduled for but 12 rounds.

Willard is to receive $1,000,000 in Liberty Bonds for his services while Dempsey draws $27,000 worth of the American war bonds from Tex Rickard, promoter of the bout.

Paris Council Deaf To Plea To Keep Turk Empire Intact

Reply To Grand Vizier Is Indictment Of Nation Held Incapable Of Ruling Other Peoples

(Reuter's Service)
Paris, June 26.—The Turkish Grand Vizier, Damad Ferid, presented the Turkish case to the Council of Ten on the 17th.

He disclaimed the responsibility of the Ottoman people for the war. He did not attempt to palliate Turkish misdeeds, over which the world will shudder forever, but he declared that the Committee of Union and Progress who seized the power in 1913 was solely responsible. They massacred Moslems equally with Christians, condemning to death three million Moslems, hundreds of thousands of whom are still wandering without shelter in Asia Minor.

Wants Status Quo Restored

Damad Ferid claimed the Ottoman people should be judged by its history, not by a single unfavorable period. He said the trial of the members of the Committee of Union and Progress in Constantinople proved the responsibility of the latter and rehabilitated the Ottoman Empire and nation, which hitherto, by intensive, economic and intellectual culture would strive to become a useful factor in the League of Nations.

He requested a termination of the occupation of Ottoman territories, the maintenance of the status quo of the Ottoman Empire and a new frontier line in Thrace securing the defense of Adrianople and Constantinople. He said a fresh dismemberment of the Ottoman Empire would entirely upset the balance in the Near East.

The Allied reply on the 25th points out that Damad Ferid does not attempt to excuse or qualify the crimes of Turkey, including the massacres, whose calculated atrocity is without precedent in history.

The Council of Ten goes not doubt the present Government of Turkey disapproves of the policy of its predecessors on the ground both of expediency and morality, but a nation must be judged by its rulers. The claim to complete territorial restoration, however, is also based on an appeal to Turkey's history.

The Council while admiring the excellent qualities of the Turkish people, cannot admit these include a capacity to rule alien races. The experiment has been tried too long and too often and nowhere in Europe, Asia or Africa is there a case where the establishment of Turkish rule has not resulted in a diminution of prosperity and the lowering of culture. Nowhere is there a case where the withdrawal of Turkish rule has not resulted in a growth of prosperity and a rise of culture. Everywhere among the Christians of Europe and the Moslems of Syria,

Council At Paris Grants Priority In Matter Of Indemnity

CHINA'S POSITION

Her Delegates Disobeyed Peking's Instructions, Tokio Is Told

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—Reuter's Agency learns that the Peace Treaty will not be operative for about a month as it must be ratified by the Parliaments of the respective Governments concerned. The present war measures, including the blockade, will continue during the interval.

Gives Belgium Priority

Paris, June 26.—The Council of Four has approved the granting of priority of Belgium in the reparations payable by Germany to the amount of two and a half billion francs.

The Council has confirmed the plan to wipe out Belgium's war debt through the substitution of German bonds for Belgian obligations.

Subject to Parliamentary approval, the Four Great Powers will take over the German bonds which Germany has contracted to hand to Belgium in reimbursement of all sums which Belgium has been compelled to borrow through violation of the Treaty of 1839.

Four Documents Signed

Paris, June 26.—Official. Four documents will be signed at Versailles. The Treaty and the Protocol will be signed by all concerned, the Rhine-land agreement by the Five Great Powers and Germany and the Polish Treaty by the Poles, Germans and the Five Great Powers.

Ministers State Position

Berlin, June 26.—It is announced that the Ministers Herr Muller and Herr Ill, at the unanimous request of the Imperial Government have decided to sign the Peace Treaty.

Under the terrible pressure of national distress and the absolute necessity of finally attaining Peace, they are unable to shrink from this last hard sacrifice.

Chinese Delegates' Action Confirmed In Messages

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 2.—The report is confirmed that the Chinese Delegates declined to sign the Treaty of Peace. Tokio Gets Report

Tokio, July 2.—It is authoritatively stated that the Chinese Delegates in Paris were in receipt of instructions from Peking in time to sign the Treaty of Peace. They were advised to trust Japan's faith regarding Shantung and to sign the Treaty without reservation on that subject.

Peking Ministry Learns Why Delegates Did Not Sign

According to a statement given out yesterday by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Chinese peace delegates headed by Dr. C. T. Wang refused to sign the treaty of peace as a result of the hundreds of telegrams that flooded their offices from China and on account of the final instructions given by Acting Premier Kung Hsin-chan. Mr. Kung, following the resignation of Premier Chen Nung-hsun, who favored the unconditional signing of treaty, repeatedly instructed the delegation not to sign in view of the public sentiment expressed against the pact without reservation on the Shantung problem. The telegraphic instructions were used by Dr. C. T. Wang, leader of opposition faction, to win over the other delegates and he succeeded.

Stated Position In Letter

The Chinese delegation, it is learned, addressed a letter to the Allied and Associated peace delegations at Versailles previous to the signing to express their willingness to sign if the Shantung clause could be let out. When the latter refused, the Chinese plenipotentiaries called to the present in the seventh hour.

Following the receipt of the note of China's refusal to sign the treaty of peace, Tschun Wang, Foreign Minister of Hupoh called a military conference and discussed the diplomatic situation. The meeting decided to wire Peking and urge the Central Administration to be cautious over the diplomatic situation now that China has isolated itself from the Allied Powers. The formation of a new Cabinet is also advised.

GENERAL HALLER'S ARMY SENT TO AID OF POLAND

Organised Plundering Bands Near Border Are To Be Broken Up

(Reuter's Service)
Paris, June 27.—The Council of Four has granted Poland the use of General Haller's army to rid the section of Galicia between Lemberg and the Ukrainian border of the organised bands which are plundering the country and murdering and torturing the peasants.

Two towns occupied.

Paris, June 27.—It is reported that the Ukrainians have occupied Odessa and Kherson.

Government Sends Appeal

Paris, June 26.—Poland has appealed to the Council of Four for permission to use General Haller's army to rid the section of Galicia between Lemberg and the Ukrainian border of organised bands which are plundering the country, murdering and torturing peasants and making it impossible for the Polish officials to establish order.

The Ukrainian Government disclaims responsibility for these robber bands, which make no pretence of belonging to any government. Consequently the use of General Haller's forces against these outlaws is not a violation of the armistice between Poland and the Petlura Government.

M. Clemenceau in a note to the German Delegation on the subject of German opposition to the establishment of Polish authority in certain territories assigned to Poland in the Peace Treaty says that the German Government will be held strictly responsible for the withdrawal of all troops and officials indicated by the Allied Commission and, in the event of local disturbances in resistance to the Treaty, that no assistance for the insurgents will be given to pass the new frontier into Poland.

Oxford Gives Degrees To Joffre And Beatty

Earl Curzon, Chancellor Of University, Presides At Imposing Ceremony

(Reuter's Service)
London, June 25.—The occasion of Oxford University conferring the degree of Doctor of Civil Law upon Admiral Sir David Beatty and Marshal Joffre today was an imposing ceremony.

Earl Curzon, Chancellor of Oxford University, presided. The very distinguished gathering included General Pershing, Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, General Sir Henry Wilson, Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, General Sir John Monash and Mr. Herbert Hoover.

Subsequently the Freedom of the City of Oxford was conferred on Sir David Beatty, who made a speech in which he said that the sinking of the German ships at Scapa Flow, although a fiasco, cannot fail to provoke a sense of humiliation in the minds of those who nobly strove to acquire the fruits of victory. "All thinking people will realize that no part of the blame can be justly attributed to those on whose behalf I receive this great honor."

CLEMENCEAU SENDS NOTE ON SCAPA FLOW INCIDENT

German Delegates Told That Sinkings Were Act Of Gross Bad Faith

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 25.—M. Clemenceau, in a note to the German delegation, says that the sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow was a violation of Articles XXIII and XXXIX of the armistice and is an act of gross bad faith.

It is open to the Allies to bring before the military tribunals the individuals responsible for the destruction of these warships. The Allies are also justified in taking measures to secure reparation for the loss.

Furthermore the sinking of the fleet is a deliberate breach of the peace terms in advance. It is not an isolated act, for the burning of the French flags in Berlin is also a breach of the terms of peace, consequently the Allies will take note of these signal acts of bad faith and will exact the necessary reparation when the investigations have been completed.

Any repetition of such acts must have a most unfortunate effect on the future operation of the Treaty which the Germans are about to sign. M. Clemenceau asks how Germany can complain on 15 years' occupation of portions of the territory or the postponement of her admission to the League of Nations if she encourages and permits such deliberate violations of her written engagements and she cannot complain if the Allies fully use the powers conferred by the Treaty, particularly Article 429, if she deliberately violates its provisions.

PAY BY CHECK

Paying by check is a simple, easy method of keeping track of every expenditure made from day to day.

The cancelled checks as returned to you each month by this bank are RECEIPTS, the stubs in your checkbook an accurate ACCOUNT of every dollar spent.

Even months from now you can go back to your checkbook and know at a glance to whom and for what you've paid out money.

If you pay cash there's always a chance of losing the money—in which case it's a dead loss. If you lose a check it's worthless to the finder—or to make doubly sure you can easily order payment on it stopped.

Adopt the pay-by-check system in meeting personal and household bills. Saves time, trouble, worry and money for you.

LOYALISTS IN RUSSIA MAKING STAND AT PERM

Harbin Hears Bolsheviks Will Make Supreme Effort To Stem Denikin's Advance

(Reuter's Service)

Omisk, June 29.—The military forces have determined to hold Perm at all costs. General Popelueff has been entrusted with the defense of the town.

The withdrawal of the army staff from Perm, the in-rush of refugees and the falling back of the Siberian army created an indescribable panic, which was aggravated by numerous Bolshevik agitators who penetrated the city in the guise of returned prisoners of war.

Proclamation Is Issued
A reassuring proclamation has been issued by General Popelueff which has allayed the panic and the flight of citizens to Ekaterinburg has ceased.

Pursuant to a resolution of the Council of Ministers to establish the office of Deputy Supreme Commander to take over the functions of the Supreme Commander in the event of the illness or death of Admiral Koltchak, a Ukase was published today nominating General Denikin for this post.

Harbin, July 2.—It is reported from Omisk that, according to a Bolshevik radio message, the Central Executive Bureau of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council has issued an appeal to the Red Army and to all the population calling on them to concentrate all their attention on the advance of General Denikin's army, which is threatening to cut off the Bolsheviks from the very rich coal area of the Don and may result in the capture of Ukraina.

According to news received by the British Military Mission at Vladivostok the combined operations of General Denikin's army and the Don Cossacks are rapidly developing with the utmost success and the enemy is retreating on the whole front.

Report Movement Suppressed

Reuter's correspondent is informed that, according to information from Irkutsk, the Bolshevik movement in the Kansk region near Tashet Station has been suppressed, largely owing to the help of the peasants who, at the approach of the Government troops, attacked the Bolsheviks in the rear and arrested their leaders.

It is reported from Pogranchinaia station that a group of Hungarians near Ordekovo Station on the night of the 1st attacked the railway buildings and the tunnel at siding 112. One railway guard was killed and one wounded.

FAMOUS HOPE DIAMOND BRINGS ANOTHER TRAGEDY

Son Of Its Latest Owner, American Millionaire, Killed By Auto

Washington, May 5.—The famous Hope Diamond has once again justified its evil reputation.

Its latest owner, Mr. Edward B. McLean, proprietor of the Washington Post, is mourning his only son, a boy of eleven, who was killed by a motor car while playing in the road near his father's estate.

Young Vinson, Walsh McLean was known to the world as "the hundred million dollar baby," and as "the millionaire boy." He was the only grandchild of two very rich men, and during his childhood he was surrounded by extraordinary precautions, including seclusion in a steel nursery, in order to circumvent possible kidnappers.

Mrs. McLean's Fears
Eight years ago Mr. McLean bought the Hope Diamond for $2,000,000. His wife seems to have been doubtful in the first place about the advantages of possessing the notorious stone, however beautiful it might be. Mr. McLean was inclined to call off the deal with Messrs. Cartier, the New York jewelers, who were selling it. However, he eventually bought it and presented it to his wife.

A few months later his mother died of pneumonia. And now his idolized son, who was more carefully guarded than many little royalties, is dead too.

The evil influence of the Hope Diamond (which weighs 44 1/2 carats) is said to date from the time when Europeans stole it from a temple at Burma. Its victims have been many and various, and so evil is its reputation that on the occasion of its last sale but one it sold for only $16,000, or 19,000 less than its accepted value.

The great stone, which flashes with the combined beauty of a sapphire and a diamond, was brought from the East in 1688 by Tavernier, the great traveler. He said it to pay his debts, and returning to the East, died of fever.

The Stone's Disappearance

Mme. de Montespan dated the decline of her favor in the eyes of Louis the XIV, who bought the stone, from the day when she persuaded Louis to let her wear it. Fouquet, a financier of the time, borrowed the diamond to make himself fine for a great fete. Soon after he lost the royal favor and was imprisoned.

No one needs to be told of the misfortunes which befell Marie Antoinette. She selected the Blue Diamond from the Crown Jewels for her own wear. The Princess de Lamballe also borrowed the jewel. She was done to death by a mob.

During the Revolution the diamond disappeared. It reappeared in Amsterdam 49 years after. The man who cut it there was ruined by his son, who committed suicide after stealing the stone.

The next owner died of starvation before he could succor himself with the proceeds of the sale of the diamond. In 1830 the diamond was purchased by a member of the Hope family, and thereafter became known as the Hope Diamond. In 1901 Lord Henry Francis Hope obtained permission to sell the famous jewel, which was part of entailed property. It passed through various hands into those of the Russian Prince Nantovski, who lent it to a beautiful French actress appearing at the Folies Bergere. The first night she wore it in public the Prince shot her from a box. The Prince was stabbed two days later by revolutionists.

Thrown Over A Precipice
The next owner, a Greek jeweler, was thrown over a precipice and killed, together with his wife and two children.

The stone passed into the possession of the ill-fated ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid. The Sultan's favorite, Hasmia Zuhayba, was wearing the diamond when her Royal master shot her dead on the approach of the Young Turks.

Senor Habib, a wealthy Spaniard, was drowned in a wreck off Singapore. The stone was supposed to have gone to the bottom with him, but this turned out to be untrue.

It was found, and Mr. McLean, the next purchaser, has been pursued by the traditional misfortune which pursues the owner.

New Empress Liner Is Soon To Be Ready

Canadian Pacific's 22,000 Ton Steamer Will Help Reduce Congestion

The Canadian Pacific Railway is not looking towards Vladivostok with a view to immediately establishing trade relations with Siberia, in spite of the fact that the government trade commission is, and has been for some time past, in that country, endeavoring to establish trade between Canada and Siberia, says the Victoria Colonist, of a recent date. On information obtained from President E. W. Beatty of the C. P. R. The company maintains that the railway conditions in Siberia make the commercial prospects too vague and uncertain at the present time, but should the railways be established on a permanent basis and guaranteed by a stable government, the C. P. R. will be early in the field with ships to capture its share of Siberia's export and import business.

As soon as it is off the ways, which should be within a few months, the Oriental fleet will be strengthened by the addition of a 22,000-ton steamer, the Empress of Canada, and with the rapid increase of this trade and the demand for tonnage, at least two freighters will be diverted from other routes or acquired by the company, and will be placed on the run between this port and Oriental cities. The new steamer will be easily the finest on the Pacific Ocean and is being built on the Clyde to the order of the C. P. R. with a view particularly to the requirement of the Oriental trade. She will have luxurious passenger accommodation and will make a strong bid for the heavy freight traffic now existing on the Pacific. The cargo steamers will be the best obtainable by the company, which has the utmost confidence in the future of the trade with the Orient.

Yanks Find London Is Cheap To Live In

Three Can Meet All Expenses With Only $322 A Week

New York, May 28.—"What is the cost of living in London?" That is the question I put to quite a lot of people who should know, but failed to get a satisfactory answer, says a soldier correspondent of the New York Evening Post. Some could tell me what the cost of living was before the war, but none seemed to have the information right up to date. It was important for me to find out the cost of living, otherwise how was it possible to tell whether my army pay would be sufficient to keep me and my wife and little boy of four over the several months that will elapse before I shall be ready to board the transport home?

I decided to find out for myself. And now I think I know at least the basis or food cost of living in London during the month of April, 1919.

To begin our investigations my wife and I engaged a modest suite in an apartment house, with attendance—the landlady to cook and serve the meals, we to supply the wherewithal to do it with.

No Apartments In London

Regarding apartments: incidentally, it may be mentioned that apartment houses and flats as they are known throughout the United States and Canada do not exist on this side of the Atlantic. Over here the class of houses used for the purpose are generally large but ancient houses that have outlived their time as private dwellings for the rich. These improved apartment houses, though not notable for modern conveniences, such as elevators, bathrooms or steam heating, are still fairly comfortable. Instance our apartments: Our combined dining-sitting room is large, well furnished and on the ground floor, and is the front room of the house. Our bed-sitting room corresponds to the one just described, being the front room on the next floor up, immediately over the dining room. Furniture, carpets and curtains are all in excellent order, the place is natty and clean, and there is plenty of daylight and ventilation. The cooking is good, and we arrange with our landlady to serve our meals at whatever time suits ourselves. Also there is the little item of extra attendance; if a little hot water is needed between meals to mix a lemon or coals needed for the fire we just touch the bell, and up comes Agnes to attend to our wants. The cost of these two rooms, with this attention, is $8.75 per week. If we want another bedroom the additional cost will be $2.50 per week. This apartment house, however, can be taken as one instance only. It may be typical, and it may not. They vary greatly in character and cost.

Kept Separate Accounts
My wife did the shopping, and we

SAFEGUARD THE CHILDREN
Against Summer Ills

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are rife at this time, and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness.

The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, in the house feels safe. The occasional use of these Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, and if sickness comes suddenly they help bring the little one through.

Baby's Own Tablets make teething easy, are a positively harmless remedy for simple fever, indigestion, colic, constipation, diarrhoea and worms. Obtainable from druggists, also post free, 60 cents the vial, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Saechuen Road, Shanghai.

both kept separate accounts of the various items from the butcher, baker and grocer, etc. When the last meal of the seventh day was over we immediately set to work on our little problem of arithmetic, and the result showed our ration account for the week to be the equivalent of $13.55.

Five dollars each for myself and wife, $2.55 for the little boy of four. No special effort was made to live cheaply, our idea being to live as well as the average person wishes to, without being wasteful or extravagant, then to check the cost for one week and take that as the irreducible minimum cost of living in London. For no matter how the housing, clothing, and amusement accounts may be contracted, or expanded to suit the purse, the cost of living must be based primarily on the food account, which cannot well be reduced below a certain minimum.

The various items that figured on our week's food account included bread, meat, bacon, fish, vegetables, apples, oranges, jam, butter, marmalade, milk, cheese, eggs, tea, coffee, sugar, rice and tapioca. Also 112 pounds of coal for cooking and heating.

Some of the prices were: Mutton, 56 cents per pound; butter, 60 cents per pound; eggs, 7 cents each; fresh milk, 89 cents per gallon; oranges (not up to the California standard), 4 cents each.

Worked out as shown here my weekly expenses for apartments and food, etc., come to approximately $22 per week.

Advertisement to Dealers in Motor Accessories ACCESSORIES

Automotive Products Corporation of New York, U.S.A., conducts the Foreign Sales Department for a group of American Manufacturers of Automotive Products.

The Automobile Accessories for which Automotive Products Corporation conducts the foreign sales department are especially selected for renewal and replacement purposes and in many instances will render longer life or greater efficiency than the original products which they replace. They are invariably patented and trade-marked articles of equipment of exceptional merit and represent the leaders in their respective lines. Among these articles are the following:

Wright Taper Roller Bearings—Consist essentially of a full series of tapered rollers in a free race, without cages, separators or spacing device, and are for replacement purposes, for automobiles, lorries and agricultural power machinery.

Gill Power Piston Rings—The Gill Piston Ring is a simple, efficient, one-piece ring which requires little or no fitting and overcomes all of the objectionable features of rings having two or more moving parts. Gill Piston Rings thus effect a saving in gasoline and lubricating oil—add power to your motor and prolong the life of your car.

Philadelphia Storage Batteries—Philadelphia Diamond Grid Batteries are extensively used in motor vehicles and motor boats, in electric passenger cars and lorries, in industrial trucks and tractors, in mine locomotives and in wireless service.

Perma Loc Products—Self-vulcanizing rubber for repairing inner tubes; also self-vulcanizing blow-out patches for shoes and casings.

Kor Ker—A preventative for punctures; a cure for slow leaks; a preservative for rubber and fabric, but not a tire filler.

Non-Gran—High speed bronze bearing metal in solid and cored bars of assorted sizes for every requirement.

Kol-Ben Wire Wheels—The strongest, simplest and most attractive wire wheel made. Sizes to fit all popular American cars.

Auburn Spark Plugs—Porcelain and Mica Plugs in all sizes for American and European motor cars and motor cycles.

Sager Bumpers—Perfection Bumpers for all popular makes of American cars.

Wellman-Seaver-Morgan Hydraulic Tire Press—The W-S-M Tire Press is a necessary part of the equipment of every truck service station giving complete service. It mounts and demounts all sizes of tires, including the largest tire built, 42" x 14", in a minimum of time. The frame construction and strength of fittings are amply able to take care of the occasional serious overloads that are demanded in service.

Certain-teed Paints and Varnishes

We are ready to supply Owners, Builders and Painters with any quantity of our complete line of Certain-teed paints and varnishes, which we have recently put in stock.

Painting is Insurance

A well-known authority in Kansas has stated that "the annual loss through lack of painting is greater than the loss through fire." Nearly every owner will insure his home against fire, but why not insure his property against decay and deterioration by painting with Certain-teed paint? Looking at the matter purely from a business point of view, you will find it will pay you to keep your property in good running order by painting, whenever necessary, with high-grade paints like Certain-teed.

Outside Paint

Let us, at this time, call your particular attention to Certain-teed Barn, Bridge and Roof Paint, which comes in three shades—Slate Color, Red, and Moss Green. Red is the most popular shade for Barns, Silos, Sheds and Granaries; Moss Green makes an ideal color for painting your roof; either Slate color or Red may be used for the painting of small bridges and wood or metal fences. Write, call or phone for color cards, prices and further information.

BRITISH DEBT TO U. S. IN OVER FOUR BILLION

J. Austen Chamberlain Tells Commons America Owes Counter Bill Of $210,000,000

FRANCE RELIES ON U. S.

Formula Of Financial Relations
Yet To Be Worked Out, But
Sure Of Co-operation

London, May 30.—J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today that the present indebtedness of the British government to the American government is £1,260,000,000, while the various American departments owe the British departments, roughly, £210,000,000.

The Chancellor said that dollar securities, including Canadian securities, now held under the treasury deposit scheme, amount to just a little more than £500,000,000, most of which has been placed as collateral for loans in America. In addition to the deposit, Mr. Chamberlain added, securities to the value of £106,111,000 had been purchased by the treasury. Most of these were sold, however.

France Relies On United States

Paris, May 30.—In outlining his financial policy in a long speech to the Senate on Tuesday afternoon, Louis Klotz, the Finance Minister, declared it was necessary in the first place to pursue a course which on the one hand would eliminate all superfluous expenses and on the other would promote such national means of production as should be encouraged and developed. In the process, the Minister said, France might be sure of finding help available from the United States if the finances of France were wisely managed. As to the budget situation, the Minister said:

"The budget expenses for 1919 will amount to 18,000,000,000 francs, of which 10,000,000,000 will go to pay the interest on the foreign debt and 4,000,000,000 francs will be for military expenses. Estimating the receipts at 11,000,000,000 francs, there remain 5,000,000,000 francs to be found."

Mr. Klotz said that the restoration of the budget balance and the decrease in financial inflation would facilitate French payments in foreign countries.

"This is very important," he continued, "as our foreign debt amounts to 27,000,000,000 in capital and 1,300,000,000 in annuities, but it is offset to the extent of 7,200,000,000 by our advances to some foreign governments and by about 4,000,000,000 owed by some of our allies for the payment of material handed over to them.

"The credits necessary to pay in the coming years for the surplus of our importations, thus checking the depreciation in exchange, remain to be found. We rely upon the cordial co-operation which has never been refused to us since the Americans joined in the war. We cannot yet determine the formula of our future financial relations with the great republic, but we may rest assured of finding in the United States the amount of credit which a wise and clever management of our affairs will win for us. In any case, the sums which America has consented to advance in the coming months will enable us to meet our needs."

"For us to feel any discouragement would be unworthy of the heroism displayed by the French combatants during the hostilities."

"Incidentally, it is not true that there was any fiscal slackness in our country during the war. On the contrary, we have been following for the last five years a fiscal policy dictated by the conviction that it was necessary to set over against the demands of credit the receipts necessary for the payment of arrears and loans. We intend to pursue the same policy in the future."

In conclusion, the Finance Minister asked the Senate "to continue giving its loyal and constant assistance to the government so as to enable it to overcome difficulties which, though serious, are far from being so serious as those which the country managed to overcome during the war."

Cafe Parisien Opens

The Parisien, Shanghai's newest cafe-restaurant and ball room, opened yesterday. A large number of ladies attending the reception and tea given in the afternoon and another good crowd inspecting the new amusement place in the evening. At dinner the tables were well filled while the dancing, which started after dinner, attracted many.

The Parisien is located in the Ben Building on Avenue Edward VII and while occupying the premises which formerly housed the Cafe Triton, is considerably larger, space having been added at the western end for a good-sized ball room. The fittings and decorations are attractive and the management will make a specialty of food and attendance.

A special Fourth of July dinner will be served tonight, to be followed by dancing. An excellent orchestra of five pieces has been engaged and there will be music both during and after dinner.

LITTLE JAPANESE CARGO BEING SENT TO CHINA

Steamships Are, However,
Securing Big Consignments
On Return Voyages

Tokio, June 19.—Though the anti-Japanese agitation in China is reported to have subsided appreciably, shipments of cargo from Japan to that country show a great decrease, says the Japan Advertiser.

The Wakanaura Maru, the Chikugo Maru, and the Toko Maru, regular liners on the Shanghai run, which are to sail from Yokohama today, have obtained a total of only 150 tons. This is the first time that shipments have fallen off so much.

There are thus very small shipments for the outward voyage from Japan, but for the return voyage there are large consignments. In fact, consignments of fertilizers and cereals destined to Yokohama have accumulated at Shanghai to a quantity of about 10,000 tons. The fertilizers require prompt shipment, as they must be brought over before the fertilizer buying season in this country is over. Even if there be not a ton of cargo for the voyage from Japan, it is believed that the steamship companies will continue to operate their regular liners as usual since full cargoes are obtainable for the return voyage.

DEMOCRATS WILL MAKE LEAGUE ELECTION ISSUE

Chairman Says 1920 Campaign
Will Be Fought On Question
Of Covenant

Chicago, May 28.—Radicalization of the League of Nations Covenant is believed by Chairman Homer S. Cummings of the Democratic National Committee to be the big issue before the party.

"It is," said he, "that it would increase the pressure on the President to run again if the League Covenant is defeated in the Senate." The name of former President Taft was cheered during the talk about the League. It was decided to hold no evening session, and to attend tonight Mr. Taft's address in favor of the League. This was the first time that Mr. Taft's name was cheered at a meeting of a Democratic National Committee.

A resolution approving unreservedly the League Covenant was introduced by James H. Moyle of Utah, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. It was seconded by General William H. Haldeman of Kentucky and read.

Resolution Of Approval
"We, the Democratic National Committee, recognizing the splendid service being rendered by President Wilson in behalf of a just and lasting peace extend to him our heartfelt good wishes and congratulations and be it

Resolved, That we do hereby record ourselves in favor of the prompt ratification by the Senate of the treaty of peace, including the covenant of the League of Nations."

"If the Republican leaders are wise," said Chairman Cummings, "they will join hands with President Wilson in ratifying the covenant. If they want to be foolish and oppose it, they will not know they are alive." The Democratic National Committee is a unit on this question. Wherever I have been I have found the great majority of the American people insist that the covenant shall be ratified.

"The Democrats of the country must begin an active militant campaign in order that the United States may continue to enjoy progressive legislation and administration. I look forward to 1920 with the utmost confidence because of the party achievements under the direction of President Wilson."

Rose To Emergency
"When the war came it seemed as if the daylight had disappeared from the world and it was fortunate for the country that the Democratic Party was in control. It is not only what critics of the administration say, for history will record it as the Golden Age of American history and American honor. When the full story of our participation in the war is told, the American people will be grateful they were afforded the progressive leadership of the Democratic Party in the most trying period of our history."

"It is manifest that the Republican Party has again fallen under reactionary leadership. The choice of the committee heads in the new House of Representatives is very discouraging to every progressive American, while the election of Senator Denno to head the Finance Committee indicates the type of leadership to which the Republican Party is committed."

"The principal purpose of this meeting is to perfect the party organization and draw into more intimate contact the various branches such as the national committee, representatives of the State committees and the women's organizations. We plan more co-ordination to make possible effective work."

Secretary Joseph P. Tumulty and Attorney General Palmer will be here tomorrow.

Mr. Tumulty wired a denial of the rumor that he was bringing a message from the President. He explained that he was coming merely as a guest of Chairman Cummings.

He is expected, however, to carry back a report of the deliberations for cable to the President in Paris.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, also will arrive in the morning and will be one of the keynote speakers at tomorrow night's dinner.

The Oregon contest was settled by seating Dr. J. W. Morrow of Portland.

Humility In Austrian Envoys' Pleas For Mercy

Presentation Of Terms To Foes Lacks Tension Attending Scene When Rantzau Showed Defiance.

St. Germain, June 2.—The coming of Austria to receive the sentence of the Allies yesterday was marked by a humility in agreeable contrast with the arrogance of her more powerful and more guilty confederate.

The Austrian delegation was plainly determined not to duplicate the impression made upon the conference by Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau. Presentation of the peace terms took place in the "stone room" of the Chateau of St. Germain, the residence of many French Kings. Because of the historic surroundings the ceremony was more impressive than that of May 7 at Versailles. There was less of the atmosphere of a sensational murder trial.

In the Trianon Palace one felt that civilization was meeting out stern justice to a band of dangerous outlaws. At St. Germain the judges had before them merely the pitiful, prostrate remnant of a once mighty empire—a people sick at heart with the consciousness of the sins of their erstwhile rulers.

Vienna Must Keep The Peace

There was no need of the assurance given in Dr. Renner's speech to convince the victor nations of Austria's desire to pick up in peaceful tranquility the broken threads of her national existence.

While the readiness of Germany to keep the peace remains to be proved, that of her "brilliant second" is self-evident. Hence the brief discourse with which Premier Clemenceau opened the conclave was wholly free from the harshness and disdain that had marked his utterances at Versailles. He simply set forth with businesslike terseness and without bitterness the conditions under which the Austrian delegation must accept or reject the terms.

Dr. Renner and his associates with a fortnight to submit written observations on the terms of the treaty, will doubtless get the additional deliberative period granted to the Germans if they so desire. No indication was given as to when the remaining sections of the treaty will be presented.

The room in which the presentation was staged is ordinarily devoted to a display of relics of the stone age in Gaul, being part of the anthropological museum which is housed in the chateau. Specimen cases had been removed.

Premier Clemenceau, flanked by President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George, sat facing the enemy envoys across the empty space formed by the tables. There was room for only three or four small tables, and most of the secretaries had to stand behind their respective chiefs. Members of the interallied press and five correspondents from Vienna occupied rows of chairs behind the Austrians.

Austrians Frankly Humble

When Dr. Renner and his counselors entered, it was noted that the chief Austrian spokesman was indeed in every respect the antithesis of the German chief emissary. Every line of his massive frame bespoke his plebeian origin, just as Brockdorff's stiff and haughty bearing had revealed the Prussian patrician.

Dr. Renner's colleagues—Klein, Peter Eichhoff, Schuler, Schumacher and Gurtler, wore an air of keen interest but of perfect composure.

The parts of his speech that received the closest attention were the pleadings that Austria be saved from economic collapse, that all the states which composed the former Dual Monarchy should share in reparations and war damages, and to those pleadings Dr. Renner added a tribute of gratitude for the relief work done in Austria by Mr. Hoover's Food Commissioners.

China Political Notes From Chinese Press

A second message has been received from Mr. Lu Cheng-hsiang, China's chief peace delegate, to say that although China refused to sign the peace treaty with Germany, a note will be addressed to the German delegation to the effect that the declaration of war against Germany by China is annulled.

Certain Ministers of the Diplomatic Corps in Peking were greatly excited over the news that China had refused to sign. One called up Acting Premier Kung Hsin-chun immediately after the report and demanded to know the reason. Mr. Kung consulted President Hsu Shih-chang for a suitable reply. President Hsu Shih-chang called a meeting of the Cabinet and the Diplomatic Commission in spite of his indisposition and discussed plans as to what is best to be done next. In view of the difficult diplomatic situation, Mr. Chen Lu, the Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs, is reported to be planning to retire from the ministerial office.

The cablegram of Mr. Lu Cheng-hsiang, announcing his refusal to sign the peace treaty, was forwarded by the Cabinet to the Military and Civil Governors of Shantung with instructions to transmit the message to the Shantung Provincial Assembly.

The Joint Bureau of the General Staff and the Ministry of War has informed General Chen Yi of Urgan that the Border Defense Army is being despatched and the expeditionary forces from the various places are also on their way to Urgan. General Chen is requested to explain to the Mongolian banner-men and urge them to remain loyal to the Government.

The Government will comply with the request of Tsuchun Chen Shu-fang of Shensi and remit relief funds for the sufferers of the famine in Chienhsian.

The Central Government has designated Mr. Chang Hu to approach the Italian Minister with the view to securing the release of the surplus revenue to Peking. It is understood that the envoy is reluctant to allow this money to be released now in view of the critical situation. The sum to be released amounts to over $1,000,000.

In recognition of the service of General Yang Cheng-hsin, Tsuchun of Sinkiang, in assisting the Omak

Government, the new Russian administration has decorated General Yang, according to the report of the Tsuchun.

General Ni Shih-chung of Anhui is the only Tsuchun among the Tuan Chi-jui clique who favors the maintenance of the Peking Parliament. Several delegates have been sent to Anhui to negotiate for a change of his views.

The Southwest is firm on the peace terms. Mr. Tang Shao-yl, the chief delegate, refuses to withdraw his eight demands and he consents to no material alterations in the terms, according to the report of Messrs. Wang Yu-ling and Chiang Shao-chi, Northern delegates.

MARY GARDEN

The World's Greatest Dramatic Actress and Most Vital Feminine Personality Will be Seen for the First Time in this City in the Great SEVEN REEL Drama of Love and Compassion

THE SPLENDID SINNER

She strikes the heart and the sympathy of humanity

A panorama-drama of the hunted woman in ten thousand towns; in your town and my town. A story of love and loyalty; of temptation and redemption; a story of human hearts and hypocrites. A plot of the present moment about men and women and boys and girls with whom you rub elbows every hour of your life.

A daring and courageous woman defending a helpless husband as a tigress defends her cub.

Depicts her facing poverty for the man she loves and spurning jewels, untold luxuries and power in the world's capitals from the hands of a man she despises.

When you have conceived in your own mind a thrilling emotional drama that sends a woman to her death for the protection of her honor, you still will not have guessed half of the Remarkable Story that will be presented to you

Hankow Market

Hankow, June 25, 1919.
Finance And Money Market
 Bills were offering fairly freely for forward delivery, but no Banks were good buyers for near. There was a large amount of inter-Bank business done for August and forward to December. There was also a small demand for remittance.

Tsals T.T. on Shanghai hardened to 97, but eased at the close to 96.9. Dollars fell from 71.6-71.8 to 71.5-71.7, buyers and sellers respectively. Interest: 15 percent Changsha Exchange: 25.

Imports
 Piece Goods: There is a very strong demand for all descriptions of Piece Goods ex stock or for near arrival, at advancing prices. The active market for Blacks has not yet opened, but still dealers are in the market, expecting higher values later on. Forward business is very difficult to negotiate, owing to the distant deliveries now being offered, coupled with continued advances in Manchester prices.

Yarn: Deliveries have increased during the past week and prices are decidedly on the upward grade. There were inquiries for Shanghai yarn for near delivery, but Shanghai Mills appear to be booked up for several months.

Exports
 The demand for Seeds remains good and considerable purchases are reported. The market for Beans is much firmer with good demand from both the United Kingdom and Holland. Wood Oil and Egg Products are firm at advancing prices. Fair purchases of Cotton are reported, and the market is strong.

Freight Market

In their report for fortnight ending July 3, Messrs. Wheelock and Co. write as follows:

The situation in our Homeward Freight market is as follows:
 To United Kingdom and Continent:
 The congestion of cargo on this berth continues as bad as ever; the Conference Lines are fully booked up for the next two months ahead and it is difficult to say now when shippers may expect any relief.

To United States via Pacific: Silk still going forward in fairly large quantities and there is also a little more general cargo offering for shipment, the green tea market is expected to open in the course of the next week or so and this should tend to put little more life into this berth, than there has been for some time past.

Coastwise: Our Northern market has been rather slack during the past fortnight as the bean-cake season from the North and Yangtze Ports is practically over the rice export from Wuhu to the South has also eased off owing to the new crops coming in locally and prospects are therefore poor for the next couple of months until the autumnal demand sets in.

Hongkong Market

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor write as follows in their report for week ending June 27:

A large volume of business has been transacted during the week under review, a great deal of it cleaning up for the impending June Settlement which takes place today. The welcome news that the Germans have finally decided to accept the Peace terms offered by the Allies reached this Colony on Tuesday the 24th instant and no doubt this fact has contributed in no small measure to the general cheeriness of all markets. The outstanding feature of the week's business has been the advance in Indos, Cements, and in Sugars.

British Burmah Petroleum—have buyers in London at 46 1/2. Anglo Egyptian "41" are 46.26 middle price in London. Rubbers—Linggis are 11.76 in London.

Exchange.—On the Peace news there was a sudden slump in sterling exchange and the T.T. rate dropping to 3/5 1/2, but at the close rates have firmed up and the demand selling rate on London is 3/6 7/16 while the T.T. selling rate on Shanghai is 65 1/2.

The Earth's Adventures; A Graphic Story

By Garrett P. Serviss

The person who possesses strong imagination does not need to go to a theater in order to enjoy Shakespeare. Sitting in his room, with the book in his hand, he is independent of the actor and the stage manager. This same elemental power of the imagination frees the mind from the limitations of time, also. Knowledge of history would be impossible without it.

One reason why historians disagree so much is because of the immense share that imagination necessarily has in their work. They can describe only what they mentally visualize, but mental as well as physical sight varies with persons.

The imagination being free of time limitations and of space limitations likewise, we can wander wherever we will in the universe, and reveal its whole life, as far as we can get clues. We can, not only go back through geological ages, and piece together the bits of evidence which the rocks afford, reconstruct the most dramatically interesting scenes which occurred on this earth millions of years ago, but, with the hints derived from another line of evidence, we can follow the earth in its amazing adventures as a chaser of the sun.

Straight Or Curved Path
We are carried 400,000,000 miles per year toward the region where now shines the star Vega, in the northern sky. As far as measurements show this motion of the earth, disregarding its annual spiralling around the sun, which is merely an incident, follows a straight line in space. Probably the real path is a very long curve, but for the present let us regard it as straight.

Four hundred million miles is about four and a third times the width of the space between the earth and the sun. But compared with remoteness of even the nearest stars it is so slight that to ordinary observation this amount of change in the position of the earth has no effect upon the apparent positions of those stars.

When we reckon star distances in miles we have to use trillions instead of millions, a trillion being a million millions. Thus Alpha Centauri is about twenty-five trillion miles away.

and Sirius about fifty trillions. Vega is probably two hundred trillion miles distant. Yet magnify the time units enough and a very different aspect is put upon the matter. Thus, while the 400 million miles traveled northward by the earth in a year is not enough to make any noticeable difference in the brightness of Vega during a human lifetime, or even in a thousand years, yet if we use geological time intervals all this is changed.

In a million years the earth will travel twice as far as the distance now separating it from the star Vega. Then, if we disregard its own movements in the meantime, Vega will appear to the inhabitants of the earth in the southern instead of the northern sky, and the entire aspect of the starry heavens will have been completely changed. Not a constellation will be left as it appears today.

Earth Has Gone Farther
Now, in its past history the earth, as a member of the solar system, has traversed even greater distances than this. A moderate estimate of the time elapsed since the first recognizable stratified rocks were laid down is 50,000,000 years. Multiply that by 400,000,000 and you get 20,000 trillions of miles as the distance travelled by the earth since, let us say, the beginning of the Silurian period. That amounts to about a thousand parsecs (the parsec is the astronomical unit of star distance measurement) and falls somewhat below moderate estimates of the distance of the nearer parts of the Milky Way. To cross the entire width of the central space within the Milky Way the solar system would require at least a hundred million years.

But, as before remarked, it is probable that the path of the solar system, shared by the earth, is not really a straight line. More likely it is an irregular orbit whose shape depends upon the varying attraction of other stars both visible and invisible. During its hundreds of millions of years of voyaging, while it has been running through the scenes of its geological history—it has perhaps, more than once circled the starry coasts of the Galaxy, and there are obscure indications in the geological record that the wanderer has had some perilous encounters and trying experiences as well as some halcyon days, like those when some benign influence showered sunshine and flowers over the now ice-bound poles.

We have assumed the velocity of the solar system to be uniform. More likely it has varied. There are some surprising speculations in recent astronomy about stars traveling faster the older they get.

IMPARTIAL AND PROGRESSIVE

SHANGHAI, JULY 4, 1919

July 4, 1919

ON this anniversary of the birth of their nation Americans will search more deeply into the nation's beginnings and its world mission than ever before in its history. For this year marks America's emergence out of one epoch into another, out of its historic role in world affairs into a new role. Our isolation in world affairs is over. It ended when for the first time we cast our lot with Europe by entering the world war. The bonds that have been tied by that war and the obligations incurred through it and through our participation in the peace conference just concluded can never be dissolved. For better or for worse America is entangled in world politics. We begin a new generation of our national life.

Whether it will be for better or for worse only destiny can unfold. To a great degree it will be of our own decision. Forces there will be that will be beyond our control, but as many more there will be that by our strength, our wealth, our prestige and our disinterestedness we can shape. And largely it will be for us to choose whether we shall allow ourselves to be moulded by the European political system or help mould that system to conform to what we conceive as our political idealism, as our mission as a nation. If the former, then what we have been taught to regard as our mission will be defeated; if the latter, then we shall make the contribution to mankind that our forebears dreamed we might make. And if we make it, it will be only by constantly holding before us the vision of those forebears and constantly exercising vigilance to guard against being diverted from the realisation of that vision by opportunist expediences and the temptations of material gain.

The temptations are already great. They form the line of least resistance. The easiest way and the most profitable will be to accept the European tradition, to play for the stakes of Old World realpolitik, to enter in the race for territorial aggrandisement and commercial supremacy, to take our seat at the council table of those who divide because they have the power to divide. There are also cogent reasons for that role besides the prospect of rewards, because so long as international relations are based on power, national survival almost demands the use of the strategies of power. On that fact is based the case of those Americans who oppose America's membership in the League of Nations. They hold that when America gave up the safety of isolation it was for participation in an international society based on higher principles than the balance of power and that when it agreed to accept responsibility for the maintenance of world peace it was on the understanding that the reconstruction following the war would end the system that causes wars. This, they hold, the peace treaty has not done. To give up our isolation, therefore, they believe, is merely to accept liability for a share in all Europe's future inevitable wars.

So far they are right, but the conclusion that America should withdraw entirely does not necessarily follow. For it is doubtful whether America can withdraw. It is doubtful whether we can sever the ties that bind us to European and Asiatic politics, since the net of our interests has been thrown so widely. More probably our only choice is to remain and to use our influence eventually to make effective those international ideals that we sought to make effective in this war and failed. But that, again, will mean a constant spurring of our people to fidelity to those ideals on our part and to the sacrifices—sacrifices in money and position—that such fidelity will entail. That is the responsibility that American citizenship carries with it in 1919. America is at the parting of the ways.

Doom Of English Middle Class

'Backbone Of England' Powerless Before Organised Workers

Mr. Harold Spender, in the article printed below, declares that a great social upheaval is in progress in Great Britain, in which the middle class, the most powerful of all the classes in the last century, is threatened with extinction. He analyses the changes which are taking place. There is a great smashing of the old gods, and he indicates the new gods which are being set up.

By Harold Spender

When a speaker told a middle-class audience the other day that their class would be extinct within a century and a half they laughed. The speaker thought that they meant to express a brazen confidence in their immortality. He was wrong. Their laugh voiced a sincere surprise that he should have given them so long a reprieve.

For the British middle class is at present in a very humble mood. Looking across Europe it sees its counterpart in Russia hunted to death like vermin, or reduced to the lowest class of pariah servitude. Nearer home, it sees them in full flight from Budapest and Vienna, while in Berlin they are openly threatened with social extinction. But even here in London and the great cities of England the middle class, once the "backbone of England," the most powerful of all the classes in the 19th century, is menaced with doom. We can see it before our eyes.

Note, for instance, the outward symbols of society—distinctions of dress and habit. In the great towns it is becoming more and more difficult to distinguish between the classes. Where are the top hat and the frock coat? Ten years ago they were the accepted wear of the "governing class," humble people made way for them in the streets and in railway trains; they were the marks and ensigns of success. Now they have gone like the snows of yester year. They are consigned to funerals. They have become the symbols of grief and woe.

The reason is clear. No one is proud any longer of being a middle-class man. The honor and glory has departed. Ichabod. The best thing is to resemble and to pretend to be a working man. Then, at any rate, you get equal treatment. You escape contempt. The taxi driver will not mock you. The girl conductor will be just to you. The railway porter may be fair to you. You will be able to face the battle of life. For who, in a frock-coat, could lightly endure the new perils of the streets—the clamor of the moving bus, the crush into the tube, the desperate clutch at the strap, the hand-to-hand encounter, the breathless "scrum"? In such a daily strife—now the lot of most Londoners—broadcloth is almost as much out of date as a suit of mail.

Then go into the homes and note the "acid" change in our social life. It was the distinguishing characteristic of the middle-class in the nineteenth century to be waited on. That was what made you a middle-class man. A work's foreman who engaged a "general" for his wife passed into the middle-class. Your social level could be judged from the number of your servants. A man servant gave you a place in the county. How pleasant it all was, that "willing service of the antique world"—the old nurse who brought up all the family, the housekeeper who knew the affairs of the house better than the sons and daughters, the parlourmaid who took more pride in the silver than the mistress herself. They linger on in out-of-the-way places, but they are a dwindling class.

Service, as a whole, is also touched with decay. The new wages are checking that steady flow of the surplus daughters from the countryside which provide the prosperous city classes with sure, cheap, and contented service. The laborer can maintain his own daughters. Woman has acquired a new passion for freedom. So the middle-class household, with all its arrangements for service, is left desolate. The fluttered inmates fly in despair to overcrowded hotels or search for flats that are not. It is a vast social disturbance. The clamor of its unrest settles in the air with lamentations.

Leisure is in danger—and leisure was the note of the middle-class—leisure for sport, leisure for travel, leisure for society, leisure for the arts. Society needs leisure; but not necessarily a "leisured class." The demand of the new society is that all classes should have some leisure, and no class all the leisure. So we see a new leisure coming into being—the leisure of the eight-hour worker. The stalls are emptying, and the picture palaces are filling. As the middle-class enjoys itself less, the working-class enjoys more. "Our turn now," they seem to say, as they take their places at the banquet of life. The tone of pleasure becomes more popular. The masses call for strong meat, while the delicate tastes leave the tables and set their faces to unwelcome toil.

It is not all a gain. Watch the hefters, and note the steady decline that goes along with this new invasion. Matthew Arnold called the middle-classes the "Philistines" of the modern world, but it is a curious irony of the situation that he himself very largely jeered them out of their Philistinism. The taste of the British middle-class was never better than just before its decline. The new invaders will be educated in their turn, like the barbarian invaders of Italy. But for the moment there is a great smashing of the old gods, a vast desire for sensation. Irving and Beerbohm Tree have passed, and Charlie Chaplin reigns in their place. The Craving For Dividends

"Of what use are you?" That is the question hurled at the unfortunate middle-class by coal commissions, industrial councils, and Labor congresses. In the old days there was an answer. There is an answer even today for the old professions—for the doctor who goes his rounds, for the person who visits his flock, for the lawyer who pleads, for the officer who fights. But what of that vast greater number of the middle-class that lives by business? There are still merchants; there are still shopkeepers. But the company system has gravely undermined the great, solid, able class that directed industry in the old days. Then you had captains of industry; now you have salaried directors and shareholders. The craving for high dividends has eclipsed the pride in good work, the fine honor, of so many old British firms. When you substitute an impersonal company for a personal chief, then you are already on the high road to State control. The love of usury has struck the heaviest blow at the great middle-class.

Meanwhile the tragedy remains; for, after all, great transitions have always an element of tragedy. Sir Edward Carson dwelt the other day, in the Budget debate, on the sad fate of the overtaxed professional man. The income-tax, that easy and attractive magnet of revenue, has completed his undoing. Not without reason do the French, a nation of Bourgeois, regard our income-tax with horror. But the income-tax could have been borne if the middle-class had really shared the great war-bonuses. The dominant fear is that, while wages soar, salaries creep.

The middle-classes are paying the penalty of their own individualism. They have despised trade unionism; and now, in their hour of fate, no trade union voices their grievances. They perish unheard. They are powerless before the great new triple alliance which has taken the place of Bismarck's creation—the triple alliance of the trained and organized workers of this country.

Handicrafts

Reviving The Ancient Art Of Tapestry Weaving

London.—Ruskin, born in the age of machine-made things, was the apostle of handicraft. The war found a very handless people. Ingenious machines of many kinds were doing our handwork, and we were just beginning to realize how very badly they were doing it. Hurled suddenly back into a primitive mode of life, our soldiers developed quickly into "handy" men. Those who come back to Blighty with wounds that took long to heal found igniting solace and refreshment in embroidery and needlework. It was quite a stimulating sight to go into a convalescent ward and find stalwart Tommies in blue busy with drawn-thread work, and the bedridden in other wards all happily occupied with embroidery frames.

It was a good idea of the dames of the Red Cross to find "the boys" these employments, and now the idea is being carried further, and all sorts of handicrafts are being found for disabled soldiers.

One of the best of these is weaving, and a Scottish lady, Mrs. Stewart Mackenzie, has organized this so ably that already in several places disabled soldiers are working at handlooms, and they are likely to be able to earn between two and three pounds a week at this.

We should suggest also that home-dyeing with vegetable dyes should be cultivated along with the weaving. This has always been done by the crofters in the north of Scotland. Scotland is a land full of wonderful color, and it is an excellent idea to capture its exquisite tints from lichens, its mosses, and its plants, and transfer them to the garments we wear.

The Women's Legion have also been teaching disabled soldiers to make the gold ornaments that embellish military and naval uniforms. This is really well paid work, and it is found that they take it up with avidity and do it well. Another handicraft that is being revived is the ancient Scottish art of tapestry weaving. The premises which Lord Bute erected near Edinburgh to encourage the revival of this interesting art have been reopened, and it is good to hear that most of the workers employed are ex-Army men. How interesting it would be if tapestries depicting scenes in the great war were woven, and hung in our ancient country houses to keep fresh the memory of these wonderful times.

"Messenger Of The Press"

By T. H. Jealigan

The resolution to be submitted to the ratepayers at an early date, and which proposes to invest the Municipal Council with supervisory powers over the publication of newspapers at Shanghai, recalls the purposes and prerogatives of a court known in English history as the Star Chamber. That court had unlimited jurisdiction of the printing and publication of books and newspapers and in the exercise of its arbitrary functions confined, all printing in England to London, Oxford and Cambridge. The subordinate officials selected to enforce its decrees were designated as the "Messengers of the Press," and each was commissioned with the authority to enter houses to search for unlicensed presses and publications.

Whatever may be the meaning and scope of the resolution the principle of it is not agreeable to the Saxon, although residing in Shanghai, any more than it was to his independent and courageous ancestors, centuries ago, when they successfully repudiated and defied the government which assumed to abridge and supervise the right to freely express their opinions on questions of public policy.

It is specially unfortunate at this time in the history of Shanghai that any measure should be brought before the ratepayers implying a mistrust of the conservative and law-abiding character of the foreign residents of the International Settlement. There is no reason for any such implication, or a want of confidence in their discretion in the publication of newspapers, and if the resolution is approved, then the ratepayers will have furnished the principal evidence to justify the assumption of the Council in the imposition it would place upon their conduct—and judgment.

In this connection the third chapter of Macaulay's history of England may be commended as interesting reading. It is there written that during the later reign of the Stuarts no newspaper could appear without the allowance of the King, "and his allowance was given exclusively to the London Gazette, which came out on Mondays and Thursdays, and had for its contents a royal proclamation, two or three tory addresses, and the announcement of a cock fight between two persons of honor." The press of England was in the slavish condition, writes Macaulay, that "when the English judges decided that no newspaper could appear, without the consent of the King, there was absolute silence by the press to events which history decides to be the most important—not even the trial and acquittal of the seven bishops was mentioned."

But, writes Buckle, in his history of civilisation in England, "by the cessation of those laws which restricted the liberty of printing, there was laid the foundation of the Great Public Press, which, more than any other single cause, has diffused among the people a knowledge of their own power, and has thus, to an almost incredible extent, aided the progress of English civilisation."

The doctrine that the press shall be free, in order that the people may be informed as to the news of the world and the policy and operation of their government, does not mean that the privilege can be abused with impunity. The same law which removes the restriction provides the prohibition and remedy for abuse, and for the reason that an unlicensed press would be as dangerous to the order of society as a restricted press to its liberty and progress; but the word unlicensed is not here used in the sense of the Council's resolution, which would constitute nine members of the International Settlement the judges on the subject of a free press and make them the custodians of its liberty, and the arbiters of its existence.

If a newspaper published at Shanghai abuses its privileges no one aggrieved can fail to find a legally organized court to redress his grievances. There are courts of at least a dozen nationalities daily open for business in the Settlement, and if the complainant cannot find one of the nationality of the offender he need not fail in his remedy, for a court of China is ever present and open and there he may appear for redress.

Whatever view is taken of the resolution it would appear needless and unnecessary, and calculated to excite opposition to the Council at a time when every ratepayer would wish to give it his unqualified support. And it is not known why the Council should want to take into its keeping the newspapers of Shanghai, and organize at the public expense a body of officials, as messengers of the press, to go from house to house to spy out and report. Shanghai is not accustomed to the system of espionage here indicated, and the cause which would justify the inauguration of the system is no sense exist. Every resident of the Settlement who is interested in the diffusion of knowledge should seriously regard the proposal to place under the censorship of any authority the main agencies for the diffusion.

If it be supposed that a company is formed to publish a newspaper at Shanghai, then incorporated by order of the American Court for China, and the Council should intervene and say that the newspaper could not be published without its license, it is easily seen that a very unpleasant issue might arise. The company incorporated by order of the American Court would not hesitate to proceed to publish its newspaper by virtue of the order, nor would it admit into its office any official to interfere who did not bear the commission, to enter, signed and sealed by the American Court.

It might be well to remember that the American government decided, several years ago, as to the extent of the obedience due by an American citizen, residing at Shanghai, to the municipal regulations of the International Settlement. The decision of the government was that its citizens, so residing, were only required to conform to the regulations in so far as they did not impair their rights under American law. And now when the Constitution of the United States is positive in the explicitness, that "the freedom of speech and of the press shall not be abridged," it will hardly be expected that Americans will disregard the principle of their Constitution, which safeguards their privilege to speak and write freely, and yield obedience to a municipal regulation of Shanghai, which seeks to deprive them of a constitutional right and privilege.

The approval of the Consular and Diplomatic bodies would have to be given before the resolution referred to could be effective, but even if given, the resolution would be negative to Americans, and because the American Diplomatic and Consular officials in China are not empowered to approve regulations of a tendency to contravene and embarrass the full enjoyment of the organic law of their country.

It is the duty of the American citizen, residing in Shanghai, to be informed as to the news of the world and the policy and operation of their government, does not mean that the privilege can be abused with impunity. The same law which removes the restriction provides the prohibition and remedy for abuse, and for the reason that an unlicensed press would be as dangerous to the order of society as a restricted press to its liberty and progress; but the word unlicensed is not here used in the sense of the Council's resolution, which would constitute nine members of the International Settlement the judges on the subject of a free press and make them the custodians of its liberty, and the arbiters of its existence.

If a newspaper published at Shanghai abuses its privileges no one aggrieved can fail to find a legally organized court to redress his grievances. There are courts of at least a dozen nationalities daily open for business in the Settlement, and if the complainant cannot find one of the nationality of the offender he need not fail in his remedy, for a court of China is ever present and open and there he may appear for redress.

Whatever view is taken of the resolution it would appear needless and unnecessary, and calculated to excite opposition to the Council at a time when every ratepayer would wish to give it his unqualified support. And it is not known why the Council should want to take into its keeping the newspapers of Shanghai, and organize at the public expense a body of officials, as messengers of the press, to go from house to house to spy out and report. Bringing Up Father

By George McManus

The Earth's Adventures; A Graphic Story

By Garrett P. Serviss

The person who possesses strong imagination does not need to go to a theater in order to enjoy Shakespeare. Sitting in his room, with the book in his hand, he is independent of the actor and the stage manager. This same elemental power of the imagination frees the mind from the limitations of time, also. Knowledge of history would be impossible without it.

One reason why historians disagree so much is because of the immense share that imagination necessarily has in their work. They can describe only what they mentally visualize, but mental as well as physical sight varies with persons.

The imagination being free of time limitations and of space limitations likewise, we can wander wherever we will in the universe, and reveal its whole life, as far as we can get clues. We can, not only go back through geological ages, and peering together the bits of evidence which the rocks afford, reconstruct the most dramatically interesting scenes which occurred on this earth millions of years ago, but, with the hints derived from another line of evidence, we can follow the earth in its amazing adventures as a chaser of the sun.

Straight Or Curved Path
We are carried 400,000,000 miles per year toward the region where now shines the star Vega, in the northern sky. As far as measurements show this motion of the earth, disregarding its annual spiraling around the sun, which is merely an incident, follows a straight line in space. Probably the real path is a very long curve, but for the present let us regard it as straight.

Four hundred million miles is about four and a third times the width of the space between the earth and the sun. But compared with remoteness of even the nearest stars it is so slight that to ordinary observation this amount of change in the position of the earth has no effect upon the apparent positions of those stars.

When we reckon star distances in miles we have to use trillions instead of millions, a trillion being a million millions. Thus Alpha Centauri is about twenty-five trillion miles away.

and Sirius about fifty trillions. Vega is probably two hundred trillion miles distant. Yet magnify the time units enough and a very different aspect is put upon the matter. Thus, while the 400 million miles traveled northward by the earth in a year is not enough to make any noticeable difference in the brightness of Vega during a human lifetime, or even in a thousand years, yet if we use geological time intervals all this is changed.

In a million years the earth will travel twice as far as the distance now separating it from the star Vega. Then, if we disregard its own movements in the meantime, Vega will appear to the inhabitants of the earth in the southern instead of the northern sky, and the entire aspect of the starry heavens will have been completely changed. Not a constellation will be left as it appears today.

Earth Has Gone Farther
Now, in its past history the earth, as a member of the solar system, has traversed even greater distances than this. A moderate estimate of the time elapsed since the first recognizable stratified rocks were laid down is 50,000,000 years. Multiply that by 400,000,000 and you get 20,000 trillions of miles as the distance travelled by the earth since, let us say, the beginning of the Silurian period. That amounts to about a thousand parsecs (the parsec is the astronomical unit of star distance measurement) and falls somewhat below moderate estimates of the distance of the nearer parts of the Milky Way. To cross the entire width of the central space within the Milky Way the solar system would require at least a hundred million years.

But, as before remarked, it is probable that the path of the solar system, shared by the earth, is not really a straight line. More likely it is an irregular orbit whose shape depends upon the varying attraction of other stars both visible and invisible. During its hundreds of millions of years of voyaging, while it has been running through the scene of its geological history—it has perhaps, more than once, circled the starry coasts of the Galaxy, and there are obscure indications in the geological record that the wanderer has had some perilous encounters and trying experiences as well as some halcyon days, like those when some benign influence showered sunshine and flowers over the now ice-bound poles.

We have assumed the velocity of the solar system to be uniform. More likely it has varied. There are some surprising speculations in recent astronomy about stars traveling faster the older they get.

FACTORY MANAGEMENT ON A FEDERAL SYSTEM

New Industrial Scheme Is Based On Model Of American
Constitution

New York, June 24.—Manufacturers and union labor leaders are watching with interest and sympathy the experiment in industrial democracy which is now being conducted in five cities—Fort Wayne, Ind.; Shelton, Conn.; Cleveland, O.; Paterson, N. J., and Brooklyn, N. Y., and which is believed by some will help prevent Bolshevism in industrial centers.

The originator of the plan, John Leitch, an efficiency engineer, started it among three hundred employees of a Fort Wayne piano factory. Its basis was the constitution of the United States. The factory was administered by a senate, a house of representatives and a cabinet corresponding to the senate and house.

Its success is said to have been immediate and permanent.

Silk Manufacturer Satisfied
R. Edmund David, head of a silk manufacturing corporation in Paterson, N. J., who was instrumental in introducing the system in his factory about a year ago, expressed today the keenest satisfaction at the results attained and said he hoped, ultimately, to establish similar working conditions in four other of his mills. The Paterson manufacturer, however, said the new system should not be considered a "panacea" or adaptable to all kinds and sizes of industrial establishments.

"Its outstanding feature," said David, "is the ungrudging recognition, on the part of the employer, of the worker's right to a voice in the determination of matters which are of vital interest to him, which lends the additional dignity to his position which self-government invariably carries with it."

"Industrial democracy or constitutionalism in industry," he said, "was first explained to the workers. A broad and fundamental set of rules adopted, was to guide management and workers."

Prevented A Strike
In proof of the system's practicality, Mr. David pointed out that last winter, when almost every other silk mill in Paterson was closed as the result of a strike, the David mill was not affected but maintained full production and was kept in continuous operation as by members of one contented and harmonious family.

Explaining the formation of the plan, Mr. David said the cabinet consisted of the executive officers of the company chosen by directors of the corporation. It has the power of veto and may initiate "legislation" as well as make suggestions to the senate and house.

Neither the senate or house are obligated to adopt the cabinet's recommendations and when they do they have the power to amend them. The cabinet, therefore, instead of issuing orders, is merely a part of the democratic control of the whole plant.

"The senate," explained Mr. David, "is composed of the foreman and department heads. It may initiate legislation which, before going to the cabinet for approval, must be accepted by the house."

Workers Elect House Members
"The house is elected by a secret vote of all the workers in the mill, one representative for every twenty workers. The house meets weekly on company time. Much of the legislative work is done by committees appointed by the presidents of the senate and house."

"There is a review board to which a discharged worker may appeal his case, and a board of appeals, giving

Outlines Effect Of War On World Industrially

Statistician Of National City Bank Stresses Result To America In Introducing Her Manufactures To Latin-America, Asia, Africa And Oceania

Albany, May 22.—An address on "The effect of the war upon the normal industrial and commercial relation of the nations, especially as to food supplies, raw material and markets," was delivered tonight before the Educational Congress, held under the direction of the University of the State of New York, by O. P. Austin, statistician of the National City Bank of New York.

The effect of the war, Mr. Austin said, would necessarily be a material reduction in the exporting power of Europe for a considerable time, especially as manufactures have been in the past the chief class of merchandise exported from that continent.

Central Europe, he said, will apparently be the greatest sufferer. The four countries controlling the area which may be properly termed Central Europe, are now being broken up into a dozen small States with new forms of Government, new legislatures and administrative officers, and new problems, especially as to the share which they are to respectively shoulder of the debts and paper currency created by the great political organizations from which they have been formed. These problems of debt, currency and finance will themselves delay the establishment of order in industries, transportation and commerce, while the fact that a large proportion of the new political organizations thus formed are interior countries and, without direct access to seaports, will increase their difficulty in entering upon international trade.

What Germany Loses

Germany loses approximately one-fifth of her area and population, Hungary approximately one-half, Austria, two-thirds or perhaps three-fourths, while the conditions in Russia are such that no man can predict the number of separate political divisions which may be created or the time or conditions of the return to production, industry, transportation, or commerce. Turkey disappears from the map and in its stead the European area seems likely to be transferred to the control of Greece and the rest under the mandates of perhaps a dozen different countries all of which promise greater developments.

The European countries fronting upon the sea, whether those engaged in the war or neutrals, emerge in far better condition than those of Central Europe, and a return to normal conditions may be expected in a reasonable length of time, while the neutrals and themselves with increased supplies of currency and a prosperity greater in most cases than that which preceded the war.

It is in the other parts of the world, North America, South America, Asia, Africa and Oceania, that the more promising future is to be expected. The United States, while she created a large indebtedness during the war, added enormously to her manufacturing capacity and to her exportation of manufactures, for the total value of her manufactures exported since the termination of the war runs at the rate of $3,000,000,000 a year, as against $1,000,000,000 a year prior to the war.

It is thus apparent that one of the great gains which the United States has made in her industries and commerce during the war has been in introducing her manufactures to the non-manufacturing sections of the world, namely, Latin-America, Asia, Africa and Oceania.

Trebled In Value

They are drawing most of their imports of manufactures from the United States, as is apparent from the fact that our own exports to Latin-America, Asia, Africa and Oceania have trebled in value since the beginning of the war. Manufactures form probably 30 percent of our total export to those areas, and there seems good reason to believe that our sales in this line to those areas will continue.

One result of the war which will prove important in the development of Africa, is the fact that it gives to Great Britain all opportunities to complete the great spinal railway system which it has long desired to construct a Cape-to-Cairo railway, with lateral lines leading to the ocean at the eastern and western frontages. In China the control, temporary or otherwise, which Japan is to have over Kwantow, and the important hinterland may bring about the development of China's great mineral deposits and the development of a great iron and steel industry.

Still another important effect of the war upon future commerce, and perhaps the greatest of all, is the fact that the war compelled man to rapidly develop the possibility of the use of the internal combustion engine in the flying machine, the road vehicle for carrying freight as well as passengers, the motor for use in developing production on farms and in the forests and mines, all of which are now in such practical form that they may be used for the development of the tropics where horse and man power could not be satisfactory utilized because of climatic conditions.
